

Partner Abuse Intervention Programs

Programs listed below are approved by the Illinois Department of Human Services to provide services like assessment, individual and group education, and case coordination with referral sources for individuals identified as having used violence and/or abuse toward their intimate partner. These services can help you accept responsibility for your behavior, learn about and modify abusive attitudes and beliefs, and give you the tools and skills to become and remain a healthy, supportive and caring partner and parent.

Other Resources

Supervised Visitation/Visitation Exchange Sites

The Supervised Child Visitation and Safe Exchange programs listed below provide a safe setting where a non-custodial parent can visit with their children. Supervised visitation is a monitored visit designed to assure that a child can have safe contact with a visiting parent without having to be put in the middle of the parents' issues. These Centers also offer supervised exchange of children so that you do not have contact with the other parent during the transfer of the child from one parent to another with the remainder of the visit unsupervised.

Respondent Resource Guide

Now That You Have an

Order of Protection Against You:

- ❖ Make sure you understand and follow the specific requirements of your Order of Protection.
- ❖ Refrain from violence and all types of abuse toward the petitioner or anyone else.
- ❖ Take it seriously, there could be severe consequences, including possible arrest for many violations.
- ❖ Understand the harm that has occurred to your child and the other parent.
- ❖ Take steps to change your violent and/or abusive behavior.

What Steps Can You Take?

- ❖ Take responsibility for your emotional needs and develop appropriate ways of communicating and meeting those needs.
- ❖ Learn alternative skills in stress management and conflict resolution. Confront gender role stereotypes and family of origin experiences that influence how you learned abusive behavior.
- ❖ Ensure that any contact with your children is non-abusive and follows the Order of Protection.
- ❖ Begin the process of healing and repair. Reach out to one of the programs listed inside this brochure for support and assistance.
